Residents asked to be alert for banking scam

Some crooks are trying the old "Bank Examiner" scam again in the Glades and police are asking residents to be on

On Monday, Feb. 27, the Belle Glade Police Department received several complaints from citizens who said a man identifying himself as a mem-ber of the department had called them and asked their help in conducting an investi-gation of possible thefts by local bank tellers. The man asked the residents if they had been burglarized recently and if any checks were stolen during the burglary. He also tries to find out if the resident has made any recent bank transactions and the status of their bank account.

The caller then attempts

National Weather Service celebrates its 125th birthday

By Mike Lyons Feb. 9, 1870 was a typically cold day in Washington, D.C.
The temperature was well below freezing and spring seemed a long way off. The weather was the last thing on President Ulysses S. Grant's mind as he began his day Still, the president did something that day that changed forever
the way we look at weather.
On Feb. 9, 1870, President
Grant signed a joint resolution of Congress authorizing the secretary of war to establish a retary of war to establish a national weather service. Later that year the first synchronous that year the irrst synchronous wer taken in the U.S. were made by members of the Army Signal Service. With a few strokes of his pen, President Grant created what today is the largest and st weather forecasting service

And, that service is getting better and better. Today, on the 125th birthday of the National Weather Service, thousands of weather observations are made hourly and daily by government agencies, volunteers, ships at sea, airplanes and satellites. "We've come a long way since those first weather observa-tions," said Dr. Elbert Friday the Director of the National Weather Service. "Today, we are in the midst of a major program to modernize the National Weather Service with state of the art technology and about meteorology."

It wasn't exactly state of the art back in the 1870's. "We only art back in the 1870's. "We only had 22 places to watch the weather," Dr. Friday said. "And all of them were east of the Rockies." On top of that, men making the weather observations were hardly meteorologists. Most were sergeants in the Army just following orders.

From a forceasting stand-

Most all of us have at one time in our lives or another had a bout of severe diarrhea. Our bodies feel totally without energy and very similar to a wet noodle. Can you imagine what severe diarrhea does to a little one with much less "constitution" than us? The results can be deadly can be deadly!

These statistics from the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta should make us stop

Paula Swaford, R.N. and think: Each year in the United States alone, over 200,000 children are hospitalized for acute diarrhea and dehydration. Over 400 of them die! Of course the statistics in third world and developing ntries are even more alarm ing.

Contrary to popular belief, one or two loose stools does not constitute diarrhea. However, a newborn or young child with frequent loose, watery stools for one day can deplete their small reserve of life-sustaining electrolytes in their systems. These electrolytes can be quickly released from the body in urine, watery stools, sweat, etc. and their condition can then rapidly become lifethreaten hreatening. The CDC recommends oral rehydration therapy which is a low-tech treatment that involves replacing fluid losses with water and electrolytes (sodium, potassium, chloride [salt], and carbon dioxide) in an oral rehydration solution.

Pedialyte and Ricelyte are two of the commercial liquid brands available, but they are somewhat on the expensive They do rehydra dren but don't necessarily reduce the severity or duration of the diarrhea. One other affordable alternative that has it all is a rice cereal-based oral rehydration therapy.

This easy to make mixture of dry infant rice cereal, water, and salt has several advantages over the commercial products. Besides being cheap-er, it improves the fluid and electrolyte absorption, decreas-es the stool volume and shortns the duration of diarrhea.

As soon as the child is rehy

Dear Fellow citizens:

Violence in the home and our communities is a sad reality. One person is killed every 36 hours by family violence in Florida. Domestic violence has reached epidemic proportions in our state and country.

The First Report of the Governor's Task Force on Domestic Violence suggested 225 recommendations to address this serious problem

Several of these recommendations involve expanding pub-lic awareness of this problem and encouraging solutions to it. I know that there are many people all around Florida who are currently working to stop this epidemic of violence.

As part of my ongoing com-mitment to public awareness, and in recognition of those who are working in this area, I will recognize exceptional individu-als or programs that help end violence in Florida's homes at the first annual "The 1995 Governor's Peace At Home Awards: Stopping Domestic Violence".

ssman Mark Foley

By Congressman Mark Foley Paper or plastic?" For many folks in urban and suburba America, what kind of bag get is about the toughest deci-sion they have to make when it comes to buying their food at the neighborhood Publix or Winn-Dixie. Modern agriculture places at their fing rtips ture places at their fingertips the greatest variety of the safest, most abundant food, at the lowest cost in the history of mankind. From fruit and veg-etables to frozen foods, Americans spend less than ten cents out of every dollar they earn to fill their grocery basket-less than any other country in the world world.

But for our area's farmers and ranchers -- the choices are not so simple. They make crucial decisions every day to stay competitive in a global marketplace. Unlike other business enterprises, they start off every year not knowing if they will harvest a crop or what price they will receive if they do. Any they will receive it they do. Any one of a number of factors beyond their control - severe weather, fickle markets and overzealous regulators - can lead to economic devastation. Recognizing both the impor-tance of a steady domestic food supply and the unique difficul-ties faces by America's farm-ers, the federal government has for many years offered a variety of commodity support programs to help farmers navi-gate these troubled waters. gate these troubed waters.

The programs provide an income safety net for Florida farmers, insure adequate food supplies at low prices for the American consumer and enhance international competitiveness. We get all this for a modest investment by the federal gov-ernment. Farm program spending hit a high of $26 billion in the mid 1980's. Since cuts. All federal programs that time, direct spending on should be on the table and cuts agriculture has been cut to agriculture should be fair. steadily. This year, farm pro-Second, spending cuts should grams will consume about go to reduce the deficit, not be 6/10ths of one percent of the spent on other programs, as federal budget - about $10 bil- has been the case for the last

Still, when it comes time to cut spending in an urban-domi-nated Congress, agriculture is always a prime target. Hitting close to home, the federal sugar program is again under attack. But, as in the past, the scare tactics of the extreme environmentalists and other opponents are not based on fact.

For instance, the sugar program operates at no cost to the taxpayers. Abolishing the pro-gram, as some would suggest, would actually result in a loss of over $30 million in receipts to the Treasury. Worse yet, it would destroy the hard-worklake Okeechobee and jeopar-dize over 420,000 jobs in 42

Certainly, reforms are needed - and they will be made. And when it comes to other farm programs there is little question that we need to reduce federal spending and eliminate the deficit. But just once, it would be nice for agri-culture's critics to acknowledge that if all other federal programs had been cut like farm programs, the deficit would not be a problem.

Unfortunately, that has not been the case

As Congress sits down this year to write the new farm bill, we again face severe budget pressures in Washington. No doubt, the farmers, and ranchers of Belle Glade, Clewiston, as that they can gain a bet-South Bay and Pahokee will be tasked to practice self-sacrifice. Third, in exchange for the spending cuts, Congress must deliver on promises to roll back the tidal wave of environmental mandates and burdensome regulations that do little to improve the environment but are a heavy burden on farmers and landowners.

Finally, if we are serious about making the transition into a true "market oriented" agriculture, as farmers desire, we must make sure that mar-ket orientation is reflected with a clear, aggressive export poli-cy. That means holding other countries to their trade obligations and continuously press ing for greater market open-ness, here in the United States, there has to be an end to marthere has to be an end to mar-ket interference and using the farmer as a public utility on behalf of foreign policy, envi-ronmental objectives, and to control food costs.

Pastor celebrates third anniversary with gospel sing

Pastor Bill Dever will cele-brate his third anniversary as minister at the Pahokee Church of the Nazarene. Since coming to Pahokee, he said he feels a lot of improvements have been made, including increased church membership and ching to missions.

increased church membership and giving to missions.

A gospel sing is scheduled for Friday, March 3, at 7:30 pm, at the church. This sing is a regularly held event on the first Friday of each month. It is sponsored by the Woman's 'Auxiliary for their nursing home ministry and varies programs. A free-will offering will be received to help them with their projects. Featured this month will be the Eads Family of West Palm Beach. It includes the father, mother, son and youngest daughter. Others will share the program also.

Following the sing, a time of free refreshments will be served in the Holt Hall of the church's annex. For further information concerning this sing or for scheduling singers in the future, you may call Brenda Peacock at 924-7123, or Pastor Dever at 924-7998.

Students confronted with different professions during Career Week

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter
Choosing career is can be a difficult task for adults, nevertheless children. However, students at Gove Elementary School are getting assistance in choosing a productive career this week. Persons in different professions began visiting the school Monday to emphasize the importance of striving to be Professional football players were on hand to speak to the students and their main topic of conversation: never settle for less then what you can actually become. Gene Atkins of the Miami Dolphins, Jessie Hester of the Los Angeles Rams and Jimmy Spencer of the New Orleans Saints stood before the Orleans Saints stood before the fourth and fifth grade classes and told of personal experiences and why they are where they are today. They told the group there was no reason why each of them couldn't become what they want.

They also stressed the fact that everyone couldn't be a football player, doctor, etc., but they constantly reiterated that the main objective for each of them was to be the best at whatever they decided to be.

Mr. Atkins talked about negative peer pressure. He told the students he had to work hard to be where he is today. He said he didn't always know he wanted to be a professional football player but he said he football player but he said he did know he wanted to be somebody. Mr. Atkins said he began preparing for his future goals while still in school by trying to be a good student and in control of his personal self.

The group of children listened attentively as Mr. Hester lold them he had also attended Gove Elementary School as a child. He said he is saware of the negative situations that students are facing today and he urged them to isolate themselves from those things. He also told the students of the need to study and the need of the need to study and the need or the need to study and the need to respect adults.

Mr. Spencer began by telling the group of his personal accomplishments. The students accomplishments. The students learned briefly of Mr. Spencer's life at Glade View Elementary, Lake Shore Middle School, Glades Central High School and the University of Florida. He said he too had been around He said he too had been around persons who were negative but he made the decision to isolate himself from those beings. Closure order lifted for large area in Everglades

The closure restricting access to the Everglades because of the stress to the deer herd has been partially lifted as water levels recede.

The following areas were opened at 12:01 a.m., Sunday, Feb. 19: The Holey Land Wildlife Management Area, and the Rotenberger. Wildlife Management Area, both in southern Palm Beach County; and Water Conservation Area 3A North. in the Everglades Wildlife North, in the Everglades Wildlife Management Area in Broward

County.

More than 700,000 acres of the access on Sept. 29, 1994, said Laura Richards, Everglades Regional Biologist with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. After 90 days the cloe order was extended indefinite-

The closure was in response to the highest water levels recorded in three decades for the Everglades. Whitetailed deer were restricted to tree islands where they quickly exhausted the they quickly exhausted the avail-able forage, and fell victim to GFC personnel surveying the area counted more than 150 dead deer. Ms. Richards said that a substantial portion of the deer herd north of Alligator Alley (I-75) has died due to the high water. "The herd won't recover from the high water for several years," she Water Conservation Area 3A South, Water Conservation Area 2A north for the east west trail, Water Conservation Area 3B, and Water Conservation Area 2B will remain closed until further notice, according to Ms. Richards.

"Conditions have improved sig-nificantly in WCA 3A North as the water levels have dropped," she said. "Deer and other upland animals are no longer restricted to lev-ees and tree islands in the area. ever, water levels in thos remain several feet above th areas remain several feet above the average for this time of year," she added.

Sportsmen can still run their oats in the deep water canals in he closed areas. Fishermen will also be glad to hear that the popular ramp at the Holiday Park Fish Camp has now been re-opened.

Pahokee church celebrates 50 years of ministry

Good Shepherd Church of God in Pahokee will cele-brate its 50th anniversary on Sunday, March 5.

Following a tent revival on East Main St. near the present location of Foodland, East Main St. near the present location of Foodland, the Church was established with 18 charter members and the Rev. J.M. Gresham as pastor. Within a few months, the groups of pentecostal believers purchased property located at the corner of Barfield Highway and First St. and erected a church building. Soon, the growing congregation added Sunday School rooms, completing the endice as it stood until 1974. In 1974, Pastor James Brewer led the congregation in adding an educational wing and remodeling the existing building. In 1980, under the leadership of Pastor Ray Simmons, the congregation purchased property on Bacom Point Rd, just outside the city limits and then exchanged the parel for a more desirable one and then exchanged the par-cel for a more desirable one near town. After Pastor

Brewer returned in 1982, the Barfield Hwy. property was sold, and the congregation worshiped in a mobile chapel until moving into the educational portion of their new church in June 1986. In 1990, on Mother's Day, the church members dedicated the brick building on Bacom Point Rd. In its 50-year history, the Point Rd.

In its 50-year history, the hurch has had 18 pastors, 13 of which served in the first two decades, and has grown to a membership of approximately 170. Pastor James H. Brewer has served the congregation for almost 17 years.

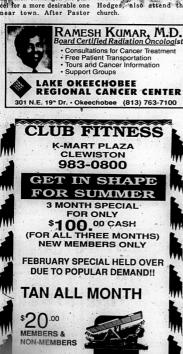

17 years.
Although none of the founding members are still members of the local congre-gation, the Thomas L. Miller family, one of the pioneer families, presently has four generations attending the generations attending the church. Deborah and Brittani Boswell, the daugh-ter and granddaughter of charter member Lewise Hodges, also attend the church.

The church's motto is "A Caring Church For A Hurting World", and it seeks to reach out to persons who are searching for help. Pastor James Brewer invites the public to attend the Golden Jubilee festivities beginning with morning worship at 10:45 a.m., con-tinuing with a fellowship meal at 12:30 p.m., and con-cluding with a gospel concert at 2 p.m.

Addressing the congregation during the morning worship service will be Ref.
